Learning to use low vision devices
Independence
Developing new skills to foster learning to make optimum use of their remaining vision
Learning to make optimum use of their most patient’s can improve the quality of life of the low vision, and the problem is growing.
As many as 5,000,000 Americans suffer from vision impairment and inherit eye diseases.

Although vision once lost cannot be restored, the foundation of Lions Club is to recognize and support those with vision loss who have trouble seeing.

Through the Lions Vision Center, the Lions Clubs work with research institutions, professional schools and hospitals to minimize the disability and rehabilitation to support low vision research.

The purpose of a Lions Club is to recognize and support those with vision loss who have trouble seeing.

The Wilmer Institute is a leader in the measurement and prevention of blindness. Research at the Wilmer Institute's international research center has made major contributions to the measurement and prevention of vision loss and blindness. Recognized for pioneering research discoveries, the Wilmer Institute is dedicated to improving the quality of life of people worldwide through sight.